Call 3 Mysterious Witnesses in Death Inquiry

ORPET BOUGHT CYANIDE

SURPRISE AT POISON TRIAL

By International News Service.
Court House, Waukegan, Ill., July 8.—Carl L. Kraft, a Lake Forest druggist, testified today in the Orpet murder case that he sold Will Orpet a pound can of cyanide of potassium on December 20. He said that the word "cyanide" was on the label. While he testified, Edward O. Orpet was hurrying from Lake Forest to take the stand to testify further concerning this purchase.

This is the first evidence produced by the State to show that the defendant ever purchased cyanide in any form.
The State rested its case at noon. The elder Orpet, arriving five minutes before, was not called.
Before court opened it became known that the prosecution had received a report that the cyanide kept in the greenhouse on the Cyrus McCormick estate, over which Edward Orpet, father of the defendant, has supervision, was not the only supply available to members of the household.

State Attorney Ralph J. Dady received a telephone call from Lake Forest informing him that the elder Orpet purchased two pounds of cyanide of potassium from Kraft's drug store in Lake Forest on December 20.
This evidence, however, information raised the attorney for the State from Margaret Stewart, one of the Roxbury girls held in Peabody death mystery.

Three mysterious Grand Jury witnesses—two women and a man—formed the latest feature today in the multiple investigation of the Margaret Ward tragedy, otherwise known as the "master mind mystery."

The secrecy maintained as to these three witnesses in particular caused much speculation.
Folliott search was kept up, meanwhile, for three women whom the authorities wish to find. They are Mrs. Minnie Frothingham, Mrs. Elizabeth P. Piffard and Mrs. Maria Pittfield. Due to Attorney Folliott has asked the press and public to assist in locating Mrs. Frothingham. She lives at No. 17 Albion street and is the wife of a well-known West End physician, Dr. James E. Frothingham.
The Suffolk grand jury resumed

PLAGUE CASES IN STATE

Seven cases of infantile paralysis, which is epidemic in Great New York, are reported in Massachusetts to date.

None of these is in Boston.
The State Board of Health at Hartford, Ct., announced today a present limit of six cases in Connecticut.
Rhode Island is reported to at least two cases at Newport. One of these children is at Newport reported to have come there from Boston. But the Newport authorities said later that the child came from Cambridge and that it was believed to have contracted the disease after leaving Cambridge on June 28.

The Massachusetts cases are distributed thus: Haverhill, 1; Lawrence, 1; New Bedford, 2; Paul River, 1; Sheffield, 1.

CASE IN HAVERHILL.
The Haverhill case is the first one reported in that city this year. Daniel Evans, one year and twenty months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Evans of Hyatt avenue, is the patient.

The Board of Health of New Bedford, where three cases are reported, says that two of them were reported June 15, before the New York epidemic started.

The Paul River case, five-year-old Joseph Conroy, is described as a strictly local case. The last infantile paralysis quiet in Paul River, reported on June 6, has recovered.

The solitary case in Lawrence, which has been under observation since July 1, is a serious one.

The Sheffield case was that of an 18-year-old boy who was there from Haverhill, N. Y., early in the week. The house at Sheffield has been quarantined and every effort made to isolate the person in that building.

It is known that a camp of Brazilian refugees in the Berkshire is being closely watched by the State Health authorities.

The State board today instituted a strict surveillance in all medical districts of the Commonwealth to prevent spread of the disease.

British Order in Council Tightens German Blockade

London, July 8.—A new order in Council was issued today withdrawing all pre-war orders made under the Declaration of London and issued since the war began. This action was taken in accordance with England's determination to tighten the blockade of Germany.

Paris today reported that the French government, following the lead of England, has abandoned the declaration of London for the same purpose.

German Merchant Ships Attacked Without Warning

By International News Service.

Paris, July 8.—The following official account of an attack upon German merchant ships in the Baltic by a submarine was issued today by the Admiralty:
"A convoy of nine German trade ships bound to Swinemunde was attacked south of the Island of Oland without previous warning, by a submerged submarine on July 5. The ships of the submarine were plainly visible, and two strong whirpools caused by the firing of the torpedoes. Fortunately the torpedoes passed between the ships and did no damage. Armed patrol boats immediately made for the spot where the submarine had been sighted. The merchant ships escaped unharmed, and safety for the rest of the convoy was assured."

MILITIA CALLED ON TO QUELL RIOTERS.

Wilmington, N. C., July 8.—Owing to disorder in the street car strike that has laid up the entire Wilmington system with the exception of the north city, most military companies from Raleigh, Charlotte, Salisbury and Greensboro were ordered here today.
They are being mobilized for service and are being held in readiness if they are needed.
Two hundred strikers were sworn in today as special deputies to protect the cars running to these points.

TEUTONS MEXICANS WITHDRAW BATTLE ON STYR BANDITS

By International News Service.

London, July 8.—Another withdrawal of the Austro-Hungarian forces was admitted in an official communication from the Vienna War Office, made public today. The Russians are charged with shelling a hospital, and the official report declares that if such a breach of the rules of war occurs again Austro-Hungarian guns will be trained against the monastery at Novopetrovsk.

Following is the text of the Vienna report:
"In Bukovina, our troops in successful engagements captured 500 prisoners and four machine guns. In Southwestern Galicia, between Belz and Radovitz numerous attacks by the Russians were repulsed by our Alpine territorial. Further north in the region of Kalk the situation is unchanged."

"Austro-Hungarian troops fighting in the Carpathians are at Paraj."

This battle is receiving new strength it is reported, from squads and companies deserting from Carpathians. While this band is moving toward the border, a force of 800 Villistas, bearing a battle with 2,000 Carpathian soldiers and 1,000 Jolites, it was officially announced in Juarez today.

This band is the same which wiped out the Carranza forces at Parral.

El Paso, Tex., July 8.—United States troops were rushed today from Marfa, Texas, to the little town of Terlingua, the Town of Three Tongues, to head off Francisco Villa.

The troop movement was ordered after information was received that a large band of Villistas, increasing in size and strength with every mile they travel, is moving toward Ojima, a Mexican town across the border from Terlingua.

BAD STATE STRAIGHT OVER BORDER

By HARRY A. BENWELL.

Camp O'Brien, El Paso, July 8.—I spent the last night with outposts amid the sandhills and cast a familiar eye on the Texas border. High overhead, the moon was just beginning to spread its silvery rays, and the evening stars were beginning to gleam as we relieved the tired sentry, who had been on duty for the past twelve hours.

My duty required me to take to the outer post of the out guard. Several times during the night inadvertently I happened to cross over the border.

This, of course, is considered quite a breach of regulations, but when one is fired with the thoughts of patriotism and love of Country, such little things as crossing the border do not matter.

I was less unfortunate than Lieutenant William McElroy of A Company, and Captain Thomas F. Brown, also of A Company, who crossed the border and were made aware of their presence on Mexican soil by the howling of dogs at the Mexican headquarters, in an adobe hut over the boundary line.

Several times during the night the camp was alarmed by the investigation of the sentry, who had mistaken the howling of dogs for the howling of Company A for investigation.

A Company had the outpost duty for the night. B Company had the night of the C and E Companies were held in reserve. No shot or other excitement disturbed the rest of the tired troops from Houston during the night.

After careful inspection Lieutenant Douglas and Lieutenant McDade made the discovery that the enemy was not in sight, and ordered that there be no smoking among the troops in khaki for fear of arousing suspicion as to our whereabouts. The sentry post of danger that might appear during that night were looked after by Major Frank S. Elliott and Captain Thomas F. Brown the latter a Filipino veteran and familiar with guerrilla warfare. Naturally his experience proved of great value down here on the border.

Brigadier General E. Leroy Sweetser, as usual, was on the job, and his slightly rosy cheeks and his outposts after Texas which sends us all experience prove of great value down here on the border.

Another of the folks back home. Dreams were thrown into the

Plan to Release Militiamen Who Have Dependents

By JOSEPH TIMMONS.

San Antonio, July 8.—General Funston explained today that militiamen who desire release from the service on the ground that they have dependent relatives must make application for release. This must be supported by definite information and by affidavits of disinterested parties at the home of the applicant, that the relative or relative relatives are actually dependent upon the soldier for support. If the showing is conclusive, General Funston will order the release.

Apparently the War Department has no present intention of carrying out the plan to divide the Southern Department. General Funston remains in entire charge of both the border guard and the planning of National Guard organizations along the border from Brownsville to Yuma.

Vacation Prophecies By HARVEY W. WILEY, M. D.
This Valuable Article Is Reprinted Here in Part by Special Permission of "Good Housekeeping," the Nation's Greatest Home Magazine

The temptation to over-eat is only one vacation danger. Without being finical, it is possible to make sure that the foodstuffs are pure and sanitary and to avoid experimentation with strange and doubtful foods. If a wise diet is followed, the vacation will surely be a success, a preparation for another year of work—not for a hospital!

By Harvey W. Wiley, M.D.
(When You're in the Wilderness of Pure Food Has Won Him an International Reputation.)

Unfortunately, the number of persons who are permitted to enjoy a real vacation is extremely limited, but even a journey to a healthful home or to the village or town, which is the privilege of every person who lives in the country, or a visit to the woods or the green fields, which may be the privilege of almost everyone living in the city, is typical of what the vacation means and illustrative of the universal desire to enjoy it.

Of one thing we may be sure, the fortunate possessor of a "leave" does not wish to bring home with him any germ or disease to make the following period of the year miserable, inefficient and intolerable.

Yet the vacationist must eat and drink, and hence these warnings. One of the dangers which every person is apt to meet while traveling is diarrhea. Very often this is due to a change of water.

The vacationist may readily go to places where the water is not fit to drink, but this is not likely. The farther we get from human habitation the less likely is the water to be polluted, and the more the forest and the stream, the mountain and the ocean, we are likely to find better water rather than worse.

A CERTAIN DANGER
Vacationists are not so likely to find foods as wholesome as those which they are accustomed to eat. When we eat prematurely, because of germs or organisms which produce irritation of the intestinal tract, the result is flatulence and other distressing conditions. Instead of trying to check the system, the vacationist should be radical in his diet, also, is a vacation which characterizes every body, especially when on vacation, leads one to try the unknown and the unaccustomed.

The result is intestinal irritation, followed, fortunately, by diarrhea and its attendant disorders. In my opinion, it is fortunate that it is so ordered, because diarrhea is only nature's effort to rid the system of the offending matter. Instead of trying to check the system, the vacationist should be radical in his diet, also, is a vacation which characterizes every body, especially when on vacation, leads one to try the unknown and the unaccustomed.

A Girl and a Man

Agnes Tells Her Aunt of Her Good Fortune and Brings Joy to a Fond Heart

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER III.
SOMEONE'S VOICE.

A little girl, with her hair pulled up in a bun, was sitting on the edge of a window, looking out at the sea. Her face was pale, and her eyes were fixed on the water. She was waiting for someone to come.

The woman's hand was raised to her forehead. Her face was pale, and her eyes were fixed on the water. She was waiting for someone to come.

The girl lifted her head and looked at the woman. Her face was pale, and her eyes were fixed on the water. She was waiting for someone to come.

The Bush Baby of Madagascar

The dwarf lemur, the smallest of all primates, are restricted to Madagascar, where they may be said to represent the galagos or "bush babies" of tropical and Southern Africa. As examples of the pretty little species commonly called bush babies, the dwarf lemur is shown here. The soft woolly coat is delicate gray, the hands and feet are white, and there is a white stripe set off by dusky rings around the eyes, extending down the center of the hind foot. As might be expected from this modification, the leaping powers of this animal are so great that it appears almost to fly from branch to branch of the high trees in which it lives.

The bush baby is a small animal, which is usually two or three inches long, and weighs about one ounce. It is a very active animal, and is able to leap from one branch to another with great ease. It is also a very good climber, and is able to climb up and down the sides of trees with great ease.

A noticeable peculiarity is the length of the hind foot. As might be expected from this modification, the leaping powers of this animal are so great that it appears almost to fly from branch to branch of the high trees in which it lives.

FIGHTS ARMED BURGLAR ON ROSE TOP

After a struggle on the roof of the building, No. 17 India street, early today, Police Officer James H. Quinn, of the Court square Police station, arrested a young man who gave him a name of Leonard Reynolds, of New York City. He is charged with breaking and entering in the night time. According to the police, the arrest came after a fight of over a week on the part of Reynolds from the Court square station. Several times during the past few weeks officers in the building have been ordered and small teams made. For the past week a policeman has been detailed to watch the building. When Reynolds was searched at the station the police say that a number of postcards taken from one of the officers in the building were in his possession. Reynolds told the police that he was his companion, James H. Quinn, he refused to divulge, but had in his cell this last a few days. Reynolds was taken to the Court square station and returned. He said that they had been taken to the Court square station and returned. He said that they had been taken to the Court square station and returned.
